

I. Historic Landmarks Inventory

This inventory of City Historic Landmarks consists of at least 2 pages for each site: 1) Landmark property description and photo; 2) building information, historic significance (most of which is from the original survey form), and survey history; and in some cases additional photographs. The 2014 update to the City of Sedona Historic Resource Survey involved corrections to information in the 2008 Survey, additional information on each landmark, and a determination as to any significant changes. The consultant, Nancy Burgess, was asked to visit each site to determine if there were any significant changes to the Landmarks. Two Survey Update Forms were completed for the sites with changes to the exterior-both of which were considered minor changes that do not impact the integrity of the Landmark: the Chapel of the Holy Cross and the Gassaway House. This section is organized alphabetically by the Landmark name.

Landmarked Date:	9/4/07	APN:	408-02-079
Date of Construction:	1922; Rebuilt circa 1963	Recorded Landmark:	Building only
Architect/Builder:	Charles Bennett with Elmer Purtymun	Zoning:	RS-35
Historic Use:	Residence	Parcel size:	0.8 acre
Present Use:	School	Owner:	Sedona Charter School
Significance to Community:	The Bennett-Purtymun Cabin was built by Charles Bennett and Elmer Purtymun on a 160-acre homestead in Grasshopper Flat (Harmony Hills) that was patented by Marvin Bennett in 1924. All the logs were hauled by wagon and team from the Soldiers Wash Basin. In 1963, when the Harmony Hills Subdivision was being built, the cabin was moved log-by-log and reassembled in its present location. This well-preserved cabin is the second oldest building in Sedona and the oldest standing log cabin.

Chapel of the Holy Cross
780 Chapel Road
May 2014

Sedona Historic Property Inventory –UPDATE– Form

PROPERTY INFORMATION

Address:	780 Chapel Road	Survey Site #:	HPS-246
Historic Name:	Chapel of the Holy Cross	Local Landmark #	19

HISTORIC SIGNIFICANCE (note any additional information concerning the property's significance since initial survey)

The Chapel of the Holy Cross is listed in the National Register at the national level of significance for its architectural design, materials and location. Designed by Anshen & Allen and completed in 1956, the Chapel is an extraordinary architectural achievement for its time and is architecturally distinguished by the integration of the building into the rock formations which support it and the cruciform design of the sandblasted crosselemant which forms the apse (rear) wall of the chapel. The isolation of Sedona at the time of construction plus the difficulty of the site resulted in a very challenging construction project for the contractor. Built as a memorial chapel in memory of the parents of artist Marguerite Brunswick Staude, it has always been open to the public. Church services are no longer conducted at the chapel. The nomination includes the chapel and the serpentine ramp which accesses the chapel along with the engaged benches.

CONDITION (Describe the current structural condition of the property)

Good (well maintained, no serious problems apparent):	X	Poor (major problems; imminent threat):
Fair (some problems apparent):		Ruin/Uninhabitable:
Comments:

INTEGRITY (Describe any modifications/alterations to the property not previously noted on the original survey)

The integrity of the Chapel of the Holy Cross is excellent, with very few changes since its completion in 1956; recent additions include a small fountain which has been integrated into an existing planter at the base of the northeast side wall of the building which forms a shaded alcove entry to the chapel. Bases of stacked sandstone support the planters and the fountain which is made of fired clay elements and does not detract from nor obscure significant elements of the building. The planters help to visually anchor the side walls of the building to the entry to the Chapel, which is covered in manufactured pavers. The planters are small in scale and compatible with the colors and materials of the Chapel and the landscape in the area. They are currently planted with colorful annuals.

Landmark Name:	Cook's-Cedar Glades Cemetery
Address:	115 Airport Road	Landmark #:	12
Designation:	City Landmark	County:	Yavapai
Landmarked Date:	November 21, 2005	APN:	408-26-003
Date of Construction:	Earliest burial ca. 1918	Recorded Landmark:	Property
Architect/Builder:	Jay Cook	Zoning:	RS-12
Historic Use:	Cemetery	Parcel size:	0.48 acres
Present Use:	Cemetery	Owner:	Sedona Historical Society
Significance to Community:	First burials were victims of the influenza epidemic of 1918. Later, homesteader Cook set the parcel aside as a formal cemetery. T.C., Sedona and Pearl Schnebly, along with descendants of other prominent pioneer families are buried there.

2014

Landmark Name:	Cook's-Cedar Glades Cemetery	Survey #:	22
		Date of Construction:	Earliest burial ca. 1918
Building Information
Materials:	Stone, concrete block, concrete, wire fencing
Applied Ornamentation:	Numerous headstones and low (1-2 feet) enclosing walls around plots; New sign and historical plaque added to site.
Outbuildings	Small pre-fab wooden storage shed on cinder blocks, shingled roof.
Grounds:
Alterations:	Burial additions. New iron entry gate in 2005.
Additional description:	Little vegetation, few defining features. Site refurbished since 2001 survey. Grounds maintained by local school children
Integrity:
Condition:	Good; Minor filling and grading needed to eliminate hazards
Historic Significance
Areas of Significance:	Community planning, settlement, local history/development; commemorative
Persons of Significance:	Burials include Sedona Schnebly and her husband Theodore Carleton (T.C.) Schnebly, and their daughter Pearl Schnebly; and the following families: Brewer, Cook, Hedges, Parker, Pirtle, Purtyman, Smith, Thomas and Van Deren. See 2006 list of burials.
Historic significance:	Only known pioneer cemetery in Sedona. Part of development related to West Sedona expansion; Cemetery was created on homesteaded land by Henry Cook in 1930.
Additional comments:	It was first used as a burial site circa 1918 during the "Spanish" flu epidemic. These early gravesites are unmarked and little is known of the individuals that were buried there. In 1928, Henry Cook homesteaded 160 acres beneath Table Mountain, now known as Airport Mesa. The existing graves were located on his homesteaded land, and in 1930, Cook fenced off the current site as a permanent cemetery. The cemetery has been in active use since that time and the burials were limited to those individuals related to the early residents of Sedona or their descendants.

PROPERTY INFORMATION

Address:	50 Schnebly Hill Road	Survey Site #:	HPS-26
Historic Name:	Gassaway House	Landmark #:	6

HISTORIC SIGNIFICANCE (note any additional information concerning the property's significance since initial survey)

This large home is significant in the economic development of Sedona as the builder started Gassaway Drugs; community planning and architecture. This Contemporary Folk Style/Arts and Crafts house was built by Dr. Frank Gassaway (druggist) in 1937 on a prominent hill adjacent to Schnebly Hill Road with 360° views. Constructed of local stone gathered on the property, with 18" thick walls, the house has a combination of poured concrete and wood floors. A large stone fireplace is a feature of the sunken living room which also includes a tile inset in the concrete floor which is designed to replicate a The house was intended to stand the test of time, which it has. The building is built around an interior courtyard which is entirely enclosed by the building and is accessible by French doors. According the City of Sedona documentation, Gassaway hired local Indians and Italian stonemasons to build the house, which took a substantial amount of time due to the lack of easy access to materials.

INTEGRITY (Describe any modifications/alterations to the property not previously noted on the original survey)

In 2000, permits were issued to convert this property to guest lodging. Substantial work was done at that time. The completion of this work was abandoned when the owner abandoned the property. This work has been detailed in City of Sedona records. As of 2014, the property is under new ownership and the plan is subdivide the property and construct several new houses. Since the change in ownership, the roof has been replaced on the house and the garage A second-story addition to the garage was constructed as a part of the 2000 remodel but was never completed. All work has been completed with the approval of the City of Sedona Historic Preservation Commission.

Architect/Builder:	Weaver and Drover	Zoning:	RS-70
Historic Use:	Residence	Parcel size:	3.167 ac
Present Use:	Residence	Owner:	Peter and Dellann Heisinger
Significance to Community:	This home was built in the mid 1950's when there were approximately 500 people living in the Sedona area, development was scattered, and there were just a few subdivisions. This period of settlement in the late 1940's to mid- 1950's was unique due to the filming of western movies in and around Sedona, cattle ranching, and the character of the individuals who were drawn to the area.

Stories:	1
Total floor area:	2240 sq ft
Foundation material:	Stone/concrete
Exterior Wall Material:	Red "L.A. Brick", 10" thick walls
Applied Ornamentation:	None
Roof:	Shed, new metal (original shingles, gravel, later covered with foam), soffits – cedar
Windows:	Wood fixed pane, some aluminum sliding windows
Entries:	3
Porches:	Large breezeway connecting main house to guest cottage; cement planters
Notable interior:	Unusual exposed laminated wood beams, same color as original; indirect light into living room through clerestory windows; interior light fixtures, radiant floor heat.
Outbuildings	900 sf casita (1973), all original, built in kitchen unit, pink bath; 500 sf former trophy room
Alterations:	Garage enlarged?
Integrity:	There has been one separate addition to the property after the original home was built. According to a "Rural Field Worksheet" in the Yavapai County records, a "Trophy room and Office" measuring 20 x 24 ft. was constructed in 1980 and added to the Az. Department of Revenue rolls. Since this is a separate structure and located away from the main house, it is not seen as significant enough to compromise integrity.
